ROWELL APPEALS TO PEOPLE OF CANADA TO ORGANIZE ALL THE RESOURCES TO HELP WIN WAR

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
TORONTO, Sept. 7.—"Britain is isving her orders for munitions to the ited States and our factories are rengthened with closing down because reat Britain has now come to a point is becoming increasingly difficult.
'The amount of foodstuffs Great Britain can purchase in Canada depends on the amount of money she can find.

The Situation

[illegible]

"It calls for the best business minds to handle the situation. It is a mistake to think that business is the same in all conditions as if we were in times of peace, and that Britain is facing a financial hurricane and that the United States has been hit by a financial event of the United States and that the United States has greatly helped us."

"In Canada the finance situation is very serious. The people there only know the facts."

"We have no military evidence that this war is drawing to a conclusion. We have no military evidence that we are going to win the war and strain in this great struggle."

"Let us organize our resources and our efforts to make the largest contributions they can so that we can carry in this war to a successful conclusion."

Exposes Fable That Dominions Are Fighting Britain's Battle

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Via Reuter's agency.—Reuter's has received the following authoritative statement regarding the respective parts played by the proportion of troops of the motherland to troops of the Dominions is between five and six to one. It must be borne in mind that this preponder-

In America and elsewhere the fact is current that large numbers of trained soldiers fit for service overseas are retained in idleness in the United Kingdom. The authors of that British reserves of men in the Americas are controlled by the Americans. The millions stated to be in reserve in this country include all men, whether or not they are actually available to British drafts in the five theatres of the war, also the sick and wounded, and the men engaged in the training staffs and the logistical and administrative units necessary to support the fighting forces.

As regards the comparative effect of the mainland and the Dominions on the economic situation of the United States, the effect of the war in procuring India, and the de-

Dear Uncle Tom: It is raining out now so I thought I would write you. We will have school next week. We have two carnations in bloom. One carnation is white and the other one is red and white striped. They were out all winter.

My mother lost a hen and some little chickens. I lost all of my young chickens. My sister lost one chicken. I have been picking a lot of blueberries. Yours truly,

IF WE HAD NO TREES

We would not have beautiful country to enjoy. Our parks would be bare looking and dreary.

We would always be extremely warm or very cold. No trees would shade us in the summer, nor break the winds in the winter.

Few birds would live near us, if we had no trees, for they could not easily find a home.

We would have severe droughts every year.

In the spring, when the snows melt, they would go off too rapidly and there would be many floods, for it takes the trunks and roots of trees to stop the water pouring down the mountains and hillsides.

The trees leave their dead leaves upon the ground, and thus keep the earth from freezing, for they hold the rain a little while, letting it sink gradually into the earth. They are the woods' deep sponge carpet.

A full-grown elm tree gives off fifteen tons of moisture in twenty-four hours, and so rid the earth of too much water, but a large sunflower gives off only three pints of water in a day.

Without trees we would be deprived of lumber, fuel, wood, pulp for newspapers, cork, bark for tanning, wild fruits, nuts, resin, turpentine, oils and many products for medicines.

FACTS ABOUT AFRICA.

Nearly one-fourth of the earth's land surface is comprised within the continent of Africa, says World Outlook. It is as far around the coast of Africa as it is around the world. Every eighth person of the world's population lives in the dark continent. The blacks double their number every 40 years and the whites every 80 years. There are 243 languages and dialects in use among the blacks of Africa. Only a few of the languages have been reduced to writing. Thirty-five years ago the export of cocoa from the Gold Coast amounted to $20. Today it is over $3,000,000. The coal fields of Africa aggregate 800,000 square miles; its copper fields equal those of North America and Europe combined, and it has undeveloped iron ore amounting to five times that of North America. Africa has 40,000 miles of river and lake navigation, and water powers aggregating 80 times those of Niagara Falls.

∴ To Do It Well ∴

Carl stood watching some children in a garden, blowing soap bubbles, and he had never seen such big ones before. They were as large and round as a balloon, and they had all the lovely colors of the rainbow in them.

The children's exclamations of delight were loud and many as the bubbles sailed up through the air, and stayed there, ever so long, before they burst.

Carl was the kind of boy that thought he could do anything as well as anybody else without asking the way to do it, so not wishing those children to get the better of him, he shrugged his shoulders, said "Huh," expressively, and ran home, stopping on the way to buy a penny blow-pipe, at the little shop around the corner. Then he put a piece of toilet soap in a basin of water and began to blow. Alas! The results were very ordinary little bubbles. "Baby ones," Carl would have termed them had any one else made them, and they fell to the ground and broke immediately. Carl worked hard for better results but the best of them were poor specimens compared to the others made in the garden yonder.

It was an effort to do it, but as there was really nothing else to do, Carl ran back to the garden and called through the wicker gate: "I say, would you fellows mind telling me just how you mixed your soapy water to get such wonderful bubbles? I'd be obliged to you if you'd let me in on it."

"Easy as coasting in winter," answered one of the boys, coming forward and inviting Carl to join them. "You take a piece of white Castile soap about the size of a walnut, cut it up in a cup of warm water, and then add a teaspoonful of glycerine. Stir all this well together and then blow through your pipe, if you have one."

"Oh, I have a pipe," said Carl, drawing his from his pocket.

"Fall to," then said the group, and Carl found that he now could blow as big and round and many-colored ones as the others and they lasted a long time in the air.

Beavers Took a Ferry Boat

The news of a ferry boat which was sunk by a live Canadian submarine comes from Stanger, a district to the northwest of Edmonton. The boat was used by Florence Saulesbury and other school children to cross the Stanger creek on their way to school and one day they came to the creek and found that their ferry boat was at the bottom of the creek. Later they found that it had been sunk on purpose by a colony of beavers who then proceeded to use the boat for the foundation of a dam across the creek. When the dam is completed the children will not need a ferry to cross the creek and can have fun sailing on the large pond which will be formed. However, they will have to be careful or the beavers may sink their sailing craft.

It is believed that the beavers made their way up from the Pembina river following the outlet of the Big Stinking Lake, to that body of water, and then passed up into the Little Stinking Lake, hence up the creek to the site of their dam on the school section.

Much apprehension is felt by the settlers whose farms adjoin the creek for the pond formed by the dam may flood their fields and considerable damage may thereby be caused. In that event it may be necessary to call in the help of the game guardian to come and take care of the family or families of beaver, the killing of which is now illegal.

Another Trial.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver, was lunching one day—it was a very hot day—when a politician paused beside his table. "Judge," said he, "I see you're drinking coffee. That's a heating drink. In this weather you want to drink iced drinks, Judge—sharp iced drinks. Did you ever try gin and ginger ale?"

"No," said the judge, smiling, "but I have tried several fellows who have."—Everybody's.

SCHOLARLY PREPAREDNESS

Teddy and His Spade

Teddy had lost his little wooden spade. You see, he had been playing on the beach, and when he wasn't looking the tide came up and washed it away. When Teddy looked for it he saw it bobbing on the waves quite far out to sea.

He ran out into the water as deep as he could—oh—away out above his knees, but the wooden spade was much, much farther out than that.

Now Teddy felt like crying, but he was a brave boy and though he was vexed he tried to make the best of it as any sensible child should.

"I hope the Mer-children find it, don't you Mover?" he asked that afternoon when he was getting ready for his nap.

"Indeed, I hope so, Teddy," his Mother answered. "And because you are such a brave little son, I'll get you a new spade while you take your nap."

She tucked Teddy into his little crib and went away.

It wasn't long before the Dream Fairy came tapping at the window.

"Teddy, Teddy," she called. "Come out with me."

"Where will we go?" Teddy asked.

"Anywhere that you choose," the Dream Fairy answered.

"O-o-o, I want to go and see if the Mer-children found my spade," Teddy cried. "Can we do that?"

"I'm sure we can. I know an ever so friendly Dolphin who will take you."

Teddy jumped out of his crib and together they raced down to the beach. Everybody had gone into take a nap so the beach was quite deserted except for a great green and gold Dolphin that lay in the bits of wavelets that rippled up on the beach.

He was a funny fish with a round head and the cheerfulest smile you ever saw.

"Teddy lost his spade," the Dream Fairy explained, "and he thinks perhaps the Mer-children found it. Can you take him down to the bottom of the sea with you?"

"With the greatest of pleasure," replied the Dolphin, "just climb on my back, Master Teddy, and we can go right off."

Teddy climbed on and held firmly the Dolphin's ears.

"Here we go!" cried the Dolphin, and in a moment they were out among the breakers. Teddy had to hold tight because the breakers tried to push him off the Dolphin's back—just for fun, but soon the Dolphin plunged deep into the sea where it was cool and quiet.

Teddy could see quite well, too, and there was a great deal indeed to see!

There were all sorts of fishes and crabs and pretty sea flowers that grew in the sand. And the spade was there too. A crab was fussing around it very indeed.

"What are you going to do with my spade?" asked Teddy.

"It's in front of my house," said the Crab. "I don't want it here."

"Then, if you don't mind, I'll take it to the Mer-children," Teddy said.

"You see, my Mover is going to get me a new one so I won't need this one."

"Take it," the Crab answered. "I don't want spades."

"Don't be crusty!" the Dolphin said. "Mr. Crab isn't very polite, is he, Teddy, but the Mer-children will be delighted."

So they went on and came to a

Mer-child, digging with his hands and Teddy gave him the spade—

"Thank you, Teddy," the Mer-child said. "It's just what I wanted, and what a nice spade it is. Won't you come and play with me?"

Teddy was just going to say "Yes," when the Dolphin spoke—

"We've been away a long time, Teddy, and I'm afraid your mother will miss you. We must come another day!"

Teddy felt a little sorry, because the Mer-children were ever so nice, but he was a good little boy and did what he was asked to do, so he promised to come again to play.

"—and I will send you my prettiest shell," the Mer-child promised. "Look

THE LOST QUARTER

"School is some good after all," said Jerry, for he had been awfully scared too.

Fortunately the moon rose as round and full as a September moon can be. Tom said confidentially that once when he was young, he used to believe that bears lived in the woods.

"Let's walk in the road," suggested Jerry. "If the tramps see us and run after us we can easily run away from them."

"A tramp isn't anything," exclaimed Tom, scornfully.

They locked arms and tramped in the middle of the road, and none of them would admit that they were tired. When they had gone a little way they saw a buggy coming down the road.

"Wish it was going the other way," said Johnnie, wearily.

The buggy came closer and drew for it on the beach; the wavelets will bring it to you."

"Thank you, Mer-child," Teddy said. "I will come again if Mr. Dolphin will take me. Good-bye."

"Good-bye," said the Mer-child.

"Come again soon."

So the Dolphin brought Teddy back to the shore where the Dream Fairy stood waiting to whisk him back to his little crib. There was his new spade, and too, when he got up and went down with it to the beach, there lay a great, big beautiful pearl lined shell.

"It's from the Mer-child!" Teddy cried. "I just know it is."

up beside them.

"Well, this is a nice time of night to be strolling around!" said a stern voice.

"Pop!" exclaimed Johnnie.

"Yes!" replied his father, "and what have you to say for yourself?"

"I lost my quarter," said Johnnie. "Mas Mummy worried?"

"Was she worried?" repeated Mr. King. "Why she's sure a bear has eaten you up and she sent me out after you. I think I'll give you a good licking for the trouble!"

But when he spoke in that tone Johnnie didn't care, although it was too dark to see the twinkle in his eyes. The three were mighty glad to get into the buggy and ride the remaining three miles home.

That night as Johnnie wearily took off his clothes, something in them rattled. He searched carefully and found, tucked in the lining of his coat—the quarter!

LETTERS TO UNCLE TOM

Passed Exams. Well.

Dear Uncle Tom: As it is raining today I thought it would be a good time to write to your club. I received my badge some time ago and I am trying to get the twelve boys and girls, but almost everybody gets the paper, so I don't know what to do to get them. I passed second into grade six, and am very glad. I have passed into grade five, and both passed into grade three. We are only going to have two more teachers now. We used to have three teachers. I put in a collection of fancy work in the fair. My collection consisted of a centre piece, a cushion, a handbag, and a pair of towels. I got first prize for it.

BLANCHÉ LUKIND

Daysland, Aug. 30th

Busy Haying.

Dear Uncle Tom: It's a long time since I last wrote, but I have been so busy haying and harvesting. We have about forty loads of hay. I have been rousing the rake most of the time when not haying hay. Our garden is good this year but we have had a lot of trouble covering up plants such as cabbages, tomatoes and pumpkins on account of the frost. My garden is very good. I have onions, leeks, cabbbage, beets, parsley, peas and sunflowers. The Innisfree fair is going to be held this week. I have a little rifle, and I am soon going to go hunting. It's raining today. This will be all now, from your nephew.

ARNE HOLVIK.

Innisfree, Sept. 3rd.

Reads Letter With Pleasure.

Dear Uncle Tom: I got my badge and I like it fine. I have it on every day. I read the Morning Bulletin every day and I like the club letters very much. Well I think I must close. I wish the club every success.

LILLY HEDLEY.

Asks for Copies of Songs.

Dear Uncle Tom: I am not a member of your circle, but if any one would be so kind as to send me a copy of the two songs "Bluebell," and "Keep the Home Fires Burning," I would try to do as much for them some other time.

ELNA JOHNSON.

Warwick, Sept. 1st.

Visited Calgary.

Dear Uncle Tom: I am sorry I didn't write for a long time. It is raining and windy today. I was in Calgary for a visit and had a good time. I was at the fair and it was very good. There was a big crowd of people there. I was trying to get twelve members to join the club but everybody gets the paper so there is nobody to join. My mother and father were away for a short time. I past to grade five and am very glad. School is going to start on September 12th, and will have a little party. We had some company visiting and now they are in Alliance.

MINNIE LIPKIND.

Daysland, Aug. 30.

To Pick Potatoes.

Dear Uncle Tom: It is a long time since I wrote last. I have been very busy while papa is haying and harvesting. We are milking seven cows now. My mamma and my brother and sister and I will have to pick potatoes. We go two miles to school. We have four horses. I like the Uncle Wiggly stories very much. We go to school every day now. I am in Grade 2.

CORA MALONEK.

Chipman, Sept. 2.

Realized $2,500.

Dear Uncle Tom: I saw my last letter in print but I made one big mistake which I hope you will correct and put this letter in print. They cleared $2,500.00 on the Red Cross day at Killam. I was raking in the holidays. We put over 300 tons of hay up this summer. School has started again and I am going every day. Yours truly,

GREGORY STRACHOTA.

Learning Fast.

Dear Uncle Tom: My father started to cut grain Monday afternoon. He has one field half done. Well, school has started again. Our teacher's name is Miss Swanson. We are going through our reading books very fast. I would be very glad if some one could send the song, "Please Papa, Don't Whip Little Bennie. He did not mean to be naughty." Yours truly,

GERTRUDE STROCHOTA.

Killam, Aug. 24th.

A Busy Patient.

Dear Uncle Tom: Well, here I am again. If all the members wrote twice a week, I guess it would take the whole Bulletin to publish the letters. As I have to keep in bed, I have to pass away the time somehow and writing letters is an easy way. When I get over my sprained ankle you will not get so many letters from me.

We are cutting our grain now. My mother is cutting the oats today. We have all our wheat cut. My father is shocking today. Our crop is not so good this year on account of the dry weather.

One of the members asked for the words of "Liddle in Khaki," here they are:

Liddle in Khaki.

There is a girl who waits at home, who's full of charm and grace, Tho' her heart is sadden'd, yet she keeps a smiling face.

Ask her whom she's thinking of—all the live-long day.

With a smile that lights her face, she will softly say:

Chorus.

Liddle in khaki I'm waiting for you! I want you to know that my heart beats true.

I'm longing and praying, and living for you.

So come back little liddle in khaki!

Just be brave a little while, he'll come to you again.

You'll forget the weary days, and you'll forget the pain.

He'll be proud of all the courage you have shown today.

He'll make you forget the time when you used to say:

(Chorus again).

Lives Near Lake.

Dear Uncle Tom: I have read many of the interesting letters of the Aladdin Club, and I would like to become a member.

I have seen some of my friend's letters published in the papers. We live by a lake. It is a mile long. I like to live near the water. We have lots of fun bathing, boating and fishing.

I did not go to school lately because I had to help with the hay, and today I was stooking grain. Hoping to get my badge soon. From your new member,

THE CITY GIRL AND THE BIG GRAY GOOSE

Betty and her mother had left the hot city to go down on the farm to visit Aunt Mable and her little girl, Lucy, for the week end. Aunt Mable drove Betty's mother from the pretty rural station to the comfortable white farm house in her new car.

Lucy preferred her shetland pony and old cart to a drive in the car, and thought Betty would too. So Pinto, the fat little pony, whisked the two little girls merrily over the country road. Betty felt sure that she was going to have a good time after she had had that ride.

That evening it rained so hard that they couldn't go out at all.

The next morning the two little cousins were up at six o'clock in the morning. They were so anxious to get out into the bright sunshine that was flooding everything that they ran a race dressing. Lucy won, because at the last moment Betty decided that she wanted to wear one of Lucy's simple little country frocks. They looked so fresh and sweet and cool. So Lucy had to hunt for one of her own dresses for Betty.

"It fits all right!" laughed Lucy. "Now let's hurry, Betty. I want to show you lots. See what I keep here!" And Lucy leaned over a large square box and picked up two playful kittens.

"Oh—oh! Lucy! Aren't they cunning? What are their names?" asked Betty, taking the pure white one into her arms.

"That one's Snowdrop, and mother says this other one is so black, we'll have to call him Coal. Come on now, and I'll show you the puppies," said Lucy happily.

Betty willingly gave up the fuzzy little kitten for a look at the puppies. There were three of them, roly-poly Colby pups that frolicked and tumbled all over each other. They tried their best to follow the girls when Lucy took Betty off to see the chickens.

The hired man was feeding the chickens, and Lucy asked him to give them some of the cracked corn so Betty might feed them too. It was great fun watching them gobble down every grain just as fast as they could, but Betty didn't like them as well as either the kittens or the puppies.

As they passed a field on their way to the pig pen, Lucy spied Pinto. "Come, Pinto! Come, Pinto!" Lucy called to him. He came running up with a little whinny, and Betty petted him quite as much as Lucy. She petted the pigs, too, and the calves, and even cross old Spot-face, the cow.

"I thought you'd be afraid of Spot-face," Lucy told her. "And I thought maybe you'd be a little bit scared of Pinto."

"Why?" Betty wanted to know. "Oh, just because you are a city girl," smiled Lucy frankly.

"Oh, Lucy, quick!" screamed Betty.

"Clara Belle's from the city, and she was afraid of even the baby ducks, Betty!"

"Baby ducks?" squealed Betty. "I don't believe I ever saw a baby duck. Where are they, Lucy?"

"Down at the pond. Over there!" Lucy pointed away to the pond as fast as ever they could, and Betty saw the dear little ducklings. Lucy was trying to coax the old mother duck to shore so Betty could hold one of the ducklings in her hand. Betty was watching Lucy so interestedly that she didn't know she was holding out her hand with some of the cracked corn the hired man had given her.

Suddenly she gave a scream, and Lucy looked up to see Betty with one arm thrown across her eyes, and the old gray goose cawing to nibble corn from her other hand. The old gray goose was followed by her faithful chum, the old white goose. But Lucy couldn't believe her eyes! Betty, who had fondled dogs, cats, chickens, Pinto, calves and even old Spot-face, was plainly terrified.

"What's the matter?" called the puzzled Lucy.

"Call them away—oh, Lucy, quick!" screamed Betty.

Lucy ran toward them and shooed them away. "You aren't afraid of geese?" asked Lucy in disgust. "Yes, I am, too!" sobbed Betty. "Mamma says I always will be, cause one flew at me when I was a teensy little girl!"

"Pooh!" scoffed Lucy. "I'll tell you what, Betty, we'll surprise your mother!"

"How?" asked Betty, drying her eyes.

"Just don't let yourself be afraid, Betty! It's easy not to!"

"How can I help it?" But Betty smiled through her tears.

"Just pretend not to be, Betty! Just you walk up to them like—the you were going to walk over 'em like that!" laughed Lucy, scattering the geese.

Betty hesitated a bit, then she gave a brave little push toward the old gray goose, and the goose was so astonished that she flew!

"Now, you'll never be afraid of geese again!" Lucy told her cousin—and she never was!

WINDOW SHOPPING

Perhaps you've sat and talked awhile, and possibly refused to smile, because the boys with whom you play have nickels every single day!

You looked a "Y. H. E. E. N. T. Come cheer your heart out, boys, and see you may window shop like me. And choose most everything you see!

I look at all the lolly-pops, The ginger-snaps and lemon drops, The knives, the hams, the butter, the stuffs,

The jumping ropes and water-wings,

And then I go back home contented Without a single penny spent! It's really heaps of fun—I claim— You try the window-shopping game!

THE YELLOW CHICK

This is a story that a little girl sent for the other readers to enjoy, because she liked it herself:

A little yellow, downy chick was watching some ducks as they swam in a pretty pond. The little chick ran and asked her mother if she would be allowed to go swimming with the ducks. "No," said her mother. "My child, what are you thinking about?" The little chick began to cry and said, "I know I can swim and I will." While her mother was gone scolding, the little yellow chick ran away and jumped into the pond. But when the chick was found drowned, her mother came home and saw her chick. Drowned she said: "If the little chick had done what she was told she could still be alive."

"Saw!" Jerry looked at his finger and watch. It had stopped, but Tom looked at the sun and said it must be going on five o'clock, so the boys dashed up their things and wandered out of the woods. Suddenly Johnny, who had been feeling in his pockets, stopped short and cried:

"Say! Say!"

"Saw!" inquired Jerry. "Did you lose something, Johnny?"

"Yes," replied Johnny, "I lost the quarter!"

SCHOOL PUZZLE

R. Stanley Weir, the author of the popular version of "O Canada," is protesting the use in Westminster Abbey, at the service in commemoration of the Confederation of Canada of a song entitled "O Canada," differing from his poem, but containing the same ideas and similar phrasing. He charges deliberate plagiarism.

been so painful a following of the original, there is, in Mr. Wel's opinion, a similarity of idea and expression that constitutes plagiarism. He therefore has written to Mr. Frederic E. Briggs, organist of the Abbey, asking him to bring the matter to the attention of the Dean.

As sung in Westminster Abbey:

With chains of love thou hast bound
 us,
 They which have made us strong,
 Our eyes have seen thy golden fields,
 To thee we raise our song.

O Canada, beneath thy glowing skies,

One faith, one hope, in ev'ry heart,
A forward marching state,
And present good like glory past
Shall make our future great!

O CANADA!

With glowing hearts we see thee rise,
The True North, strong and free,
And stand on guard, O Canada,
We stand on guard for thee.

Great prairies spread and lordly rivers flow,
How dear to us thy broad domain,
From East to Western Sea,
Thou land of hope for all who toil!

Adventures of Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

Uncle Wiggily's Auto Tire

Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Hello! Hello there, Uncle Wiggily!" called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one morning, as she stood on the step of the hollow stump bungalow. "Where are you?"

"What is it you want?" asked the rabbit gentleman of his inuskrat lady housekeeper.

"Will you please go to the store for me and bring me back a box of baking powder?" asked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "I started to bake a cake, but, at the last minute, I found I had no baking powder."

"I'll get it for you in a jiffy," said the bunny. "I suppose you want to blow up the cake with the baking powder?"

"Well, I want to make it rise and be light," she answered. "And that's pretty nearly the same thing. But you must hurry, Wiggy dear."

"I'll hurry. I'll go in my automobile," answered Mr. Longears. And soon he was skimming through the woods and over the fields in his auto, which had bologna sausage tires on it, and, if you sprinkled pepper on them, the wheels went around very fast indeed.

In a little while Uncle Wiggily reached the grocery store kept by a nice monkey dooodle gentleman, who gave the bunny rabbit the box of baking powder.

"Now I must hurry back to Nurse Jane," said Uncle Wiggily.

He was going along in his auto, as nicely as you please, when, all of a sudden, something went:

"Bang!"

"One of my automobile tires has burst," said Uncle Wiggily. "Tshaw!

This is too bad; just when Nurse Jane is in a hurry for the baking powder.

"Well, there's no help for it. I can't run my auto with a burst tire. I'll have to put on a new one."

He had some extra tires on the back of his machine and soon he had put one on and was pumping it full of air with the pump. For, though the auto tires look like bologna sausages, they are really filled with air instead of meat.

Uncle Wiggily was pumping and pumping away when, all at once, he heard some one hop out from behind a big tree beside the road and a voice said:

"Well, when you get through with what you are doing you may come with me!"

"Why should I come with you?" asked Uncle Wiggily, still pumping away at the auto tire.

"Because I want you for dinner," went on the voice.

"For my dinner or yours?" asked the bunny.

"My dinner! I'm very hungry!" cried a bad black bear, for he it was who had jumped out at Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, dear! I can't possibly come to dinner with you!" said the bunny. "I must take this to Nurse Jane to let her finish making the cake," he went on, taking the can of baking powder out of the auto, and wishing it was gun powder, so he could shoot the bear.

"It makes no matter of difference to me what you can't do," snarled the bear. "I said you were going to be my dinner and so you are! Get ready, now!"

"But first would you kindly let me finish pumping air into this auto tire?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I don't like to stop with it half filled."

"Yes, you may finish that," said the bear.

Then Uncle Wiggily pumped, but he pumped so slowly (hoping to make the filling of the tire last a long while so as to give him time for some of his friends to come and help him) that the bear cried:

"Here! You're too slow! I'll finish pumping this tire, and then you'll come with me!"

The bear, not at all politely, grabbed the air pump away from Uncle Wiggily and began pumping up the tire. Faster and faster the bear pumped, for he was in a hurry for his rabbit dinner.

"I'll show you how to pump up an auto tire!" cried the bear, pumping away harder than ever.

"You had better look out," said Uncle Wiggily, "or you might—"

And just then—

"Bang!" went the tire and all the air that had been pumped in came out all of a sudden and it blew the top off the baking powder box, filling the air with white stuff like smoke.

"Oh, I'm shot! I'm shot!" cried the bear. "Oh, you shot me!" But Uncle Wiggily hadn't at all. It was only the auto tire bursting like a circus balloon when you stick a pin in it.

The bear ran away, Uncle Wiggily put on another new tire, got some more baking powder and everything was all right.

And, if the sun bonnet doesn't go out in the moonlight and scare the Jack-o-Lantern so it bites the pumpkin pie, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Needle's claws.

The captain and the mate on board the Pretty Polly were at loggerheads. They scowled whenever they met, and seized opportunities of scoring off each other with fearful glee. Each took a turn at making the day's entries in the log-book, and the mate when making his entries was very surprised to find, in the captain's handwriting, the words:

"June 2nd, 1917—Mate drunk."

He stared at it wrathfully a moment, then a slow grin broke over his face. He took his pen, and wrote:

"June 3rd, 1917—Captain sober."

Hutchinson, Que., May 20, 1915.
For seven years, I suffered terribly from indigestion. I had belching gas from the stomach, bitter stuff coming up into my mouth after eating, while at times I had nausea and vomiting and had chronic constipation. I tried many remedies but nothing did me good. Finally a friend advised me to take "Fruit-active". I took this grand fruit medicine and it made me well. I am grateful to "Fruit-active", and to everyone who has miserable health with constipation and indigestion and bad stomach. I say take "Fruit-active", and you will get well.

SEVEN YEARS TORTURE
Nothing helped this Until He Took

Hutchinson, Que., May 20, 1915.
For seven years, I suffered terribly from indigestion. I had belching gas from the stomach, bitter stuff coming up into my mouth after eating, while at times I had nausea and vomiting and had chronic constipation. I tried many remedies but nothing did me good. Finally a friend advised me to take "Fruit-active". I took this grand fruit medicine and it made me well. I am grateful to "Fruit-active", and to everyone who has miserable health with constipation and indigestion and bad stomach. I say take "Fruit-active", and you will get well.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, retail, 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-active Limited, Ottawa.

When Mr. Waite landed in this part of the prairie, he was broke and with nothing to keep from starving. He had no team and no livestock, not even a cow. Worst of all, he was $20 in debt to the farmer who had loaned him the land. He was eight years ago, Mr. Waite and family have not wanted to wait for even one of their worldly worth accumulated in a comfortable suit. But the energy and plucky endurance of Mr. Waite has helped to overcome the difficulties of the life in the sense that the little man has been able to get on his feet. He has been able to get on his feet. He has been able to get on his feet.

So many ways of hope for you. Millions of people die every year from consumption. Millions could have been saved if only common sense prevention had been used in the first stage. Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuritis, Pneumonia, Weak Lungs, Catarrh, Cough, Colds and Diseases of the Respiratory Organs—all lead up to Consumption—Tuberculosis. Dr. Strangeton's T.B. Medicine is a most powerful treatment for above-mentioned diseases. Awarded Gold Medal for Medicine at the three International Exhibitions—London, 1910; Paris, 1911; Brussels, 1910 and 1911. Sold everywhere. Write for booklet. Correspondence invited.

A MARRIED MAN'S DAY

Arranged by a Married Man for the Guidance of Married Men

7:00 A.M.

An Early Morning Tribute to Ross Bros.

Jumping out of bed after a refreshing sleep, Mr. Married Man was agreeably surprised to find the house so comfortably warm. He had recently had his furnace overhauled by—

ROSS BROS.

Plumbing and Heating Co.

and had put the fire on the night before for the first time. Last winter its operation had been anything but satisfactory and during the summer he mentioned this fact to his neighbor, who had told him that he had the same trouble and had told his troubles to Ross Bros., who had eliminated them entirely. On his advice, Mr. Married Man got the same firm to attend to his furnace with equally satisfactory results.

ROSS BROS. are specialists in heating and plumbing problems, none are too difficult for them to solve, as reader of this tribute will find out if they try them.

8:30 A.M.

MR. MARRIED MAN

sends his car to have his Willard Storage Battery tested. In his opinion a man's storage battery is something like his wife—performance depends upon attention received. Mr. Married Man uses a Willard Battery because after using numerous other makes he finds more genuine satisfaction in the Willard than any other make.

The Schol Opening naturally finds Mr. Married Man with lots of purchases on his hands. Piling the youngsters into his car, he immediately heads for the—

Douglas Company Limited

They had their Douglas Educational List of Books with them, and he felt implicit confidence in the Douglas Company's judgment, knowing whatever the children needed in School Supplies would be found there, and that they would get all their School Books at Publisher's Prices.

Twenty years of practical experience in the selecting and handling of School Books together with their extremely large stock makes shopping a pleasure at this store.

Before settling down to business he remembers that his wife told him before leaving the house that he should place his order for his new fall suit and suggested that he should try—this time. She remarked that Mrs. Blank had been, telling her that her husband had just gotten a suit and that she had never seen him so well pleased over anything as he was with it and that he had patronized "Tip, the Tailor." Mr. Married Man, therefore, finding that he had a few minutes to spare went over to Mr. Tipp's store on 101st Street, and was delighted with the fine range of Fall Suitings he was shown and had no difficulty whatever in selecting a nice Bannockburn Tweed which Mr. Tipp assured him would make up well and would give him excellent service, and this was the only place in the city that he could get this particular quality tweed from.

J. L. TIPP

At the same time he showed him some splendid worsted and serges and Mr. Married Man made a resolve that in future he would turn over his clothing worries to Mr. Tipp as he seemed to know just the proper cloth to select and the ideas as to style of garment that would be most suitable coincided entirely with Mr. Married Man's own judgment of what would be in good taste.

He was surprised, too, at the very low prices at which he was able to buy made-to-measure clothes in comparison with what he had thought he would have to pay.

10:15 A.M.

Mr. Married Man has his memory jolted when he caught sight of the following ad:—

KING COAL

Is the Coal for Storing

KING COAL will not slack in your basement.

KING COAL comes from the best equipped mine in the Edmonton district.

There is more KING COAL sold in this city than any other coal. This is fact, not fiction.

We advise you strongly to be prepared for the coming winter. We advise you to fill your coal bin. We advise you to buy good hard coal that will not slack.

KING COAL is the Coal You Want.

Mr. Business Man proceeds to dictate his correspondence—

And right here is where a man wants to exercise keen judgment.

Whether a business man employs a man or woman under the head of Confidential Secretary, Personal Secretary, Stenographer, or Bookkeeper, he should be extremely particular on special points—skill, temperament, adaptability and the capacity that person possesses for consistent, accurate work, and the College from which that person secured his or her business education.

The business man should not rely entirely upon his ability for reading character.

The Alberta College Commercial Department is an institution that may be fully depended upon to select persons for any class of office work. The system employed at this office is the development of years of painstaking study and proven by results—its claim to recognition as the leading institution for Business Education in the West. ## PHOENIX CAFE

Lunch hour having arrived, he was ready for a good meal after his busy morning, and calling up a friend, he suggested that they meet at the Phoenix Cafe, where they could eat luncheon in comfort, and enjoy a splendid, substantial meal at a reasonable price and served quickly.

His friend remarked that he had been in the habit of spending much more for his lunch than the Phoenix charged, and was amazed at the quality of the meal they enjoyed. He made this resolve: "The Phoenix for me after this."

2:00 P.M.

He Must Not Forget to order Those Flowers his wife reminded him of.

So he phones the EMERY FLORAL CO., and is informed they will be delivered at once. He always buys his Flowers from them, because he knows their large stock is always fresh and in perfect condition. Another reason is that their prices are the most reasonable and their service is prompt and courteous. The manager mentioned the large selection of Ferns suitable for the living room they have in stock, and Mr. Married Man ordered a couple sent up along with the Cut Flowers.

Buy's His Sunday Reading

Passing the Book Store of

A. H. Esch & Co., Ltd.

Mr. Married Man, thinking of the long Sunday ahead of him, dropped into the store and made a selection from the new offering of Popular Fiction which was seen in such profusion in this store, so that he is now fully fortified against a rainy Sunday and quite prepared for a quiet evening at home.

He remarked to the clerk who had served him that he had seldom seen as many apparently really desirably new books as have come out this Fall and said that he would be in later for some other reading.

4:00 P.M.

A Slight Feeling of Headache

Reminds Mr. Married Man that he must not put off having his eyes examined any longer. So calling 5225, he was soon talking with

MECKLENBURG

The Optician, and jumping in his car made his way to the office, Room 208 Williamson Bldg. —Here he was subjected to a very careful examination and, as he feared, it was found he needed glasses. "A long delay, I suppose," said he. "Nothing doing," said the Optician, "you can have your glasses in the morning." And when Mr. Married Man asked for his bill, the remarkably reasonable amount surprised him. "Well!" he exclaimed, "this settles it; my friends will in future be advised to bring their Eye Troubles to Mecklenburg, The Optician, for speedy solution."

Mr. Married Man Buys A Birthday Gift.

For some time Mr. Married Man had been planning to give his wife a new automobile as a birthday present. He realized that his own car gave him plenty of outdoor life, but the good lady who presides so efficiently over his home was entitled to some recreation and he conceived the idea that nothing would be more appreciated than a nice touring car in which she could entertain her friends and give the family the outings their health and happiness demanded.

After looking around he finally selected a four cylinder at $1,475, a car which Mr. Morrison, the local manager, explained was peculiarly adapted to his needs as it is an extremely easy-riding and easily handled car. His wife could learn to drive it with one or two lessons and the service organization of the STUDEBAKER Company is so complete and perfect that the car need never give the owner any concern. It is absolutely guaranteed in every part for a year and then all concern as to operation of the car is removed.

His decision was no sooner made than he was being driven home in his new purchase and you can imagine the great delight his generous impulse would bring to his wife and children.

He also noticed in the new STUDEBAKER showroom on Jasper Avenue the other models of this increasingly popular car.

Studebaker

5:00 P.M.

Solid Comfort for Dad from Blowey Henry's

This has been Mr. Married Man's busy day—providing things for other people. Now he decides that he will make one purchase for himself. He has long promised himself a Morris Chair, so that the long winter evenings he spends at home may be passed in comfort. Passing BLOWEY-HENRY'S store he is reminded that his wife just before he left home told him that she wanted him to get that long promised piece of furniture today.

He decided to "do it now," and was soon being shown the splendid line of easy chairs for men, one of which he selected, and was promised that it would be delivered promptly.

5:30 P.M.

Well, Mr. Married Man having an idea of adding a little to the home comfort, drove up to the store of the

Masters Piano Co.

10524 JASPER

and was soon examining the new Phonolas, of which this firm are the sole agents. When his attention was drawn to the

Stella Piano Mandolette

Mr. Masters explained the wonderfully attractive features of this ingenious musical instrument, which is easily learned and easily played. The Juniors were clamoring for Dad to come across, so when the remarkably low price was named, a bargain was quickly struck and after selecting a few new records and coaxing the wife away from the attractive display of Beadwork, the family continued on their way.

6:00 P.M.

The shopping being over and Mr. Married Man's youngsters were calling for some of the car was immediately headed to this well known Confectionery Store, corner of 2nd and Jasper. However, this is where Mr. Married Man put his foot in it, for no sooner had the wife entered the store, than she exclaimed at the tempting display of a complete line of Moir's Chocolates. Of course, Mr. Married Man squared himself with a five pound box, and she insists that he gets the habit and drops in at Rossum's every week-end for the Sunday box of Chocolates.

ROSSUM'S Delicious Ice Cream

8:30 P.M.

A Good Show at the Majesty Theatre

"Where shall we go tonight?" said Mr. Married Man to his wife after the evening meal. "Well," said his wife, "suppose we drive down in my new Studebaker and go into the MAJESTY THEATRE for the second show. I see that Jean Southern is being featured in a new drama, 'Her Good Name,' and I should like to see it."

"Splendid," rejoined her husband, and they spent a most pleasant evening in this fine modern play-house, and noted that the coming week they could see Billie Burke on Monday and Tuesday, and "The Greater Law"—a Blue-bird feature. Wednesday and Thursday, Madame Petrova in "Bridges Burned"; Friday and Saturday, "The Moral Code," a beautiful Art Drama, featuring Anna Q. Nilsson.
